Ad Bundle

Juno's proprietary offline client interface provides advertisers with an unprecedented opportunity to reach users through unique and engaging placements.

An ad bundle consists of a combination of pop-up, banner and interstitial impressions to maximize impact and reach a desired audience. A Juno pop-up is a full-screen ad unit, which is the first message to appear as a user logs on to the service. Interstitials are viewed when a user downloads or sends mail. They are the only ad on the screen during that time ensuring a captive audience. Banners are seen at the top of email interface as users read and write. All of these ad units can be targeted to specific users by demographic, geographic or psychographic preferences for maximum results.

The screenshot displays the Juno offline client interface. At the top, a banner reads "You've got a friend in the business." Gateway Essential™ PCs. Below this, a pop-up window titled "Gateway™ PCs" features an image of a computer and text stating "starting at $799" and "Great Performance, Great Value!". At the bottom, an interstitial window also displays "Gateway™ PCs" with a computer image and the same pricing and slogan. The background shows an email interface with a list of messages and a news article snippet.

An added enhancement: To make ad bundles more effective Juno added the opportunity to create pre-filled forms. These are personalized communications where a form is already pre-populated with user information, such as name, address, and e-mail address. This facilitates opt-in and one-click conversions — dramatically increasing results and building lists quickly.
